

“The Sea Remembers Its Own” by Dylan Tauber

(Verse 1)

In the heart of the ocean, where the deep silence lies,
The light of the moon, reflected in its eyes.
Waves are dancing, whispers in the wind,
Tales of the sea, where everything begins.

Crushing on the shore, secrets meet the sand,
Unseen mysteries, held in the sea's hand.
A rhythm as old, as the world's first dawn,
The sea remembers, it's where we're drawn.

(Pre-Chorus)

Can you hear the call, echoes in the foam?
The sea's sweet lullaby, calling us home.
Feel the pulse, the beat in your veins,
The sea remembers, it dances in the rain.

(Chorus)

(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
The sea remembers its own,
In every wave, every stone.
(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
With every tide, every moon that's grown,
The sea remembers, it's never alone.

(Verse 2)

Beneath the surface, where the sunlight fades,
A world unknown, where the sea serenades.
Coral castles, and creatures of the deep,
The sea holds secrets, in its keep.

From the smallest shell, to the largest whale,
Every story told, in each scale and tail.
A symphony of life, in each ebb and flow,
The sea remembers, it's part of the show.

(Pre-Chorus)

Can you feel the surge, the rhythm of the tide?
The sea's heartbeat, where our souls confide.
Feel the pulse, the beat in your veins,
The sea remembers, it dances in the rain.

(Chorus)

(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
The sea remembers its own,
In every wave, every stone.
(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
With every tide, every moon that's grown,
The sea remembers, it's never alone.

(Bridge)

In the dance of the dolphins, in the song of the whale,
In the rush of the waves, in the force of the gale.
In the silence of the deep, where the light doesn't reach,
The sea remembers, it has lessons to teach.

(Chorus)

(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
The sea remembers its own,
In every wave, every stone.
(Oh-oh-oh-oh)
With every tide, every moon that's grown,
The sea remembers, it's never alone.

(Outro)

As the sun sets, and the stars take the throne,
In the heart of the sea, we find our own.
With the rhythm of the waves, in a dance well known,
The sea remembers, it calls us home.

<https://www.DylanTauber.com>